Trial of the Assassins.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, May 20th. — The Commission for the trial of the assassins, was called to order this morning at 9 o'clock, and was occupied during the entire day in the examination of witnesses for the prosecution.

Mr. Bingham, Judge Advocate, will state that he will not call upon the whole number of witnesses whom he desired to call upon the stand, but will endeavor to limit the evidence to some reasonable extent, consistent with a full and complete exhibition of the evidence given on the part of the Government.

The Commission will meet at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, when the prosecution will proceed with the examination of witnesses.

The Court met pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Bingham, Judge Advocate, stated that he would call upon Mr. Pitman to read the testimony of Mr. Montgomery Blair, taken before the Military Commission, which was read.

Mr. Blair testified that he was at the residence of Mr. Seward on the night of the assassination; was awakened by the ringing of the bell; went down stairs and found Mr. Seward's son Frederick at the door; was told by him that his father had been murdered in his bed; went up stairs and found Mr. Seward lying on the floor, between the bed and the wall, on a mattress; there was a pool of blood on the floor; Mr. Seward was insensible; witness remained with him until the arrival of Dr. Tyler, when he left; saw Mr. Seward on the following morning; he was then conscious; witness asked him if he knew who had done the deed; he replied that he thought it was Payne, whom he had known in Washington as a Mr. Wood.

Mr. Pitman read the testimony of Mr. Frederick Seward, taken before the Military Commission, which was read.

Mr. Seward testified that he was awakened by the ringing of the bell; went down stairs and found Payne at the door; was told by him that he had been sent by Dr. Mudd to see his father; Payne was admitted; witness followed him up stairs; Payne went into his father's room; witness followed him to the door; saw Payne strike his father with a bowie knife; Payne struck at witness with the knife; witness parried the blow with his left arm; Payne then struck witness on the head with the knife; witness fell; Payne then left the room; witness got up and followed him down stairs; Payne passed out of the front door; witness followed him to the door; saw Payne mount his horse and ride off; witness then went up stairs to his father's room; found him lying on the floor, between the bed and the wall, on a mattress; there was a pool of blood on the floor; witness remained with his father until the arrival of Dr. Tyler; saw his father on the following morning; he was then conscious; witness asked him if he knew who had done the deed; he replied that he thought it was Payne, whom he had known in Washington as a Mr. Wood.

Mr. Pitman read the testimony of Mr. Augustus
